

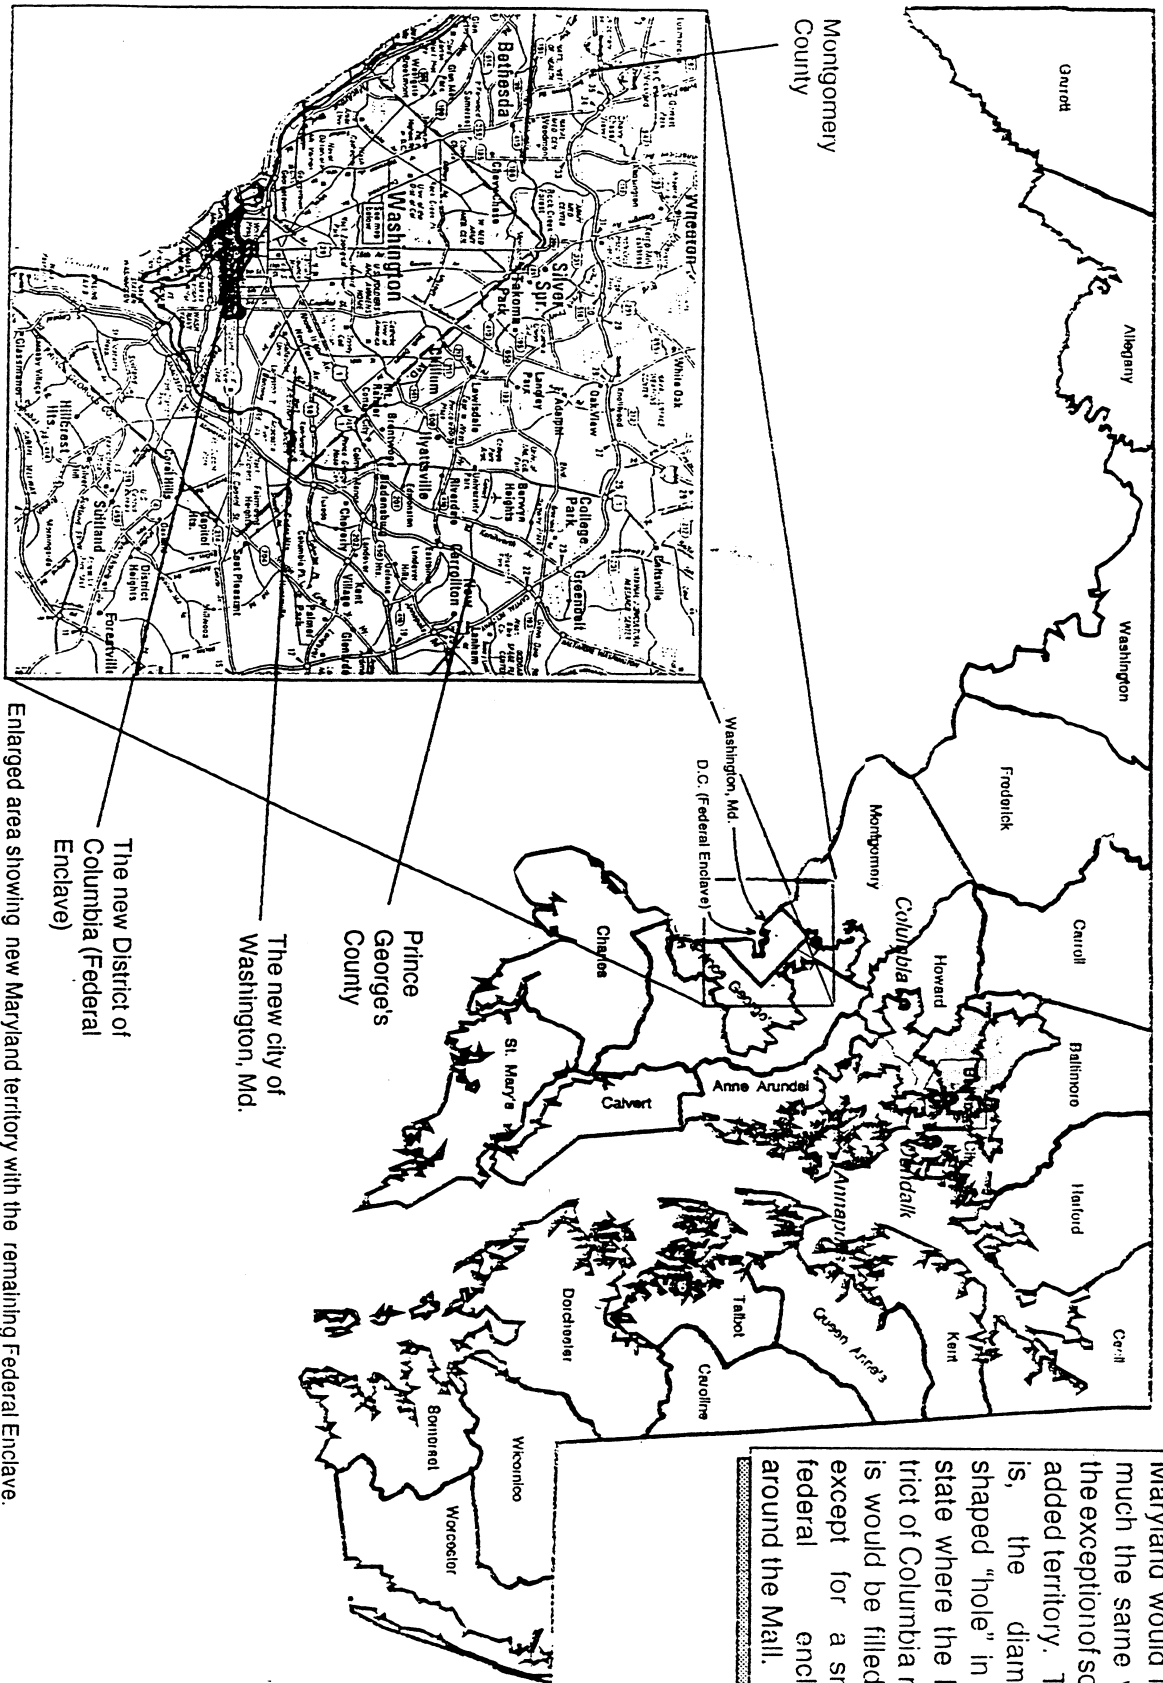

Exhibit 4

WHAT WOULD IT LOOK LIKE?

Enlarged area showing new Maryland territory with the remaining Federal Enclave.

The new District of Columbia (Federal Enclave)

The new city of Washington, Md.

Prince George's County

Maryland would look much the same with the exception of some added territory. That is, the diamond shaped "hole" in the state where the District of Columbia now is would be filled in, except for a small federal enclave around the Mall.

Diagram by Mark Schaefer.